free download..Q: How to create a private chat between friends by using

XMPP? I am creating a chatting application in which the users can chat.

But I want to implement a private chat option. i.e. whenever the user presses the private button, all the chat conversations with that user should be blocked, but the rest should be open. How can I do this? A: You just have to use the `block()` method on your XMPP client object. The full documentation is at the Openfire website. In the Openfire source code this is how you use it:

SimpleXMPPManager myManager
= new SimpleXMPPManager(); UserReference ref = myManager. getUserReference(username); Chat chat = ref.getChat(); // Remove user from current chatroom chat.invite(ref.getUser(usrname), ""); // Block user from current chatroom chat.

`block(ref.getUser(username)` `);` Now you can just put a blocking chat option in your chat client. Please be aware that this is considered a really bad idea: You basically make your private conversations inaccessible. You have to manually block/unblock a user in each chatroom, that is annoying. So I would suggest you instead to only show the users in this chatroom, but not have them join. In case you need to make multiple users visible in one room, you might need to use groups instead of rooms (this would make it possible to have a single room with multiple users).

I haven't used this combination myself, so I can't give you any more information, but you should
