ViewController hides UIImage when Switch is pressed I have a button that loads up an image that is then set as the UIImageView's image in another ViewController. When the button is pressed, this image sets and the UIImageView loads. When the switch is turned, the image loads and animates to the default, but when the switch is turned, the image disappears and only the default UIImage appears (the animated image shows behind the default image).

Why is this? Below is my loading code. - (IBAction)person ButtonPressed:(UIButton

*)sender { if (personButton.isSelected) {
[_personImageView
setImage:[UIImage imageNamed:@"whitePerson.png"]]; } else { [_personImageView
setImage:[UIImage
imageNamed:@"person.png"]];
} [UIView
animateWithDuration:1.0f
animations:^{
_personImageView.alpha = 1.0f;
}]; self.view.backgroundColor =
[UIColor clearColor]; } EDIT:
To add to this, if I add this line
under the else statement, it only animates the default image.
[UIView
animateWithDuration:1.0f
animations:^{

```
_personImageView.frame =
CGRectMake(0, 0, 700, 300);
    }]; A: 09e8f5149f
