What's New In (Un)colored?

Are you one of those users who have to write their documents in different writing styles and then process them using custom CSS? Not anymore! With (Un)colored, you can combine different writing styles and process them using the modern markdown format. Create texts using any style. Quickly write documents in any writing style, such as China, Japan, Germany, Australia, Britain and more. Document Themes, Minimal UI and Live Preview (Un)colored has many advantages over other editors. We have for example document themes, multi-selecting text options and live previews. Document themes are new in (Un)colored, and they are quite unique. You can choose which web style to use for your documents and combine them with CSS to make your web document completely unique. This feature is extremely useful for creating different web-specialised documents, and after using the tool, you will easily understand why document themes are so valuable. Not only that, document themes are also an excellent way to come up with a highly personalized editor. Furthermore, (Un)colored has a minimalist user interface that makes it extremely easy to use. You will only need to write your document, select text and hit the convert button to send it to the processing stage. You will instantly see changes that are about to happen in your document. We call this feature live previews. In your documents there will be themes that you can switch on to get the look you like best. Multiple text options In (Un)colored, you can select multiple text options and toggle them at the same time. It is an amazingly useful function, and it allows you to quickly alternate between different types of text content, even if some of them contain tables or other complexities. Search and replace features If you have text that you need to be replaced in your document, just type the word or phrase you wish to replace and hit the replace button. You can use wildcards, such as * and?, which means that the replacement can be performed at the beginning or end of the search. Tables We have included a feature that lets you toggle table support in all web documents you create with (Un)colored. You can select the table option and quickly toggle it on or off. Save a live HTML document Save a document you have written in (Un)colored in a live HTML format. This way, you can upload your document to any social network like Facebook or Twitter, or directly share your document with friends and colleagues
