This is why we have come up with this guide which will help you to determine what's the right speaker that you need for your home. How Loud is Loud Enough? With certain applications, you need to hear what's being said. It's also important that your speaker is loud enough to be heard in the entire room of your house. Your music, movies, and TV shows must be heard without fail. Choosing your speaker based on these factors is the best way to make your home better. A more powerful speaker means that you'll be able to play music and watch movies without trouble. It's also the best way to make sure that people at home don't have to shout at each other. What to look for when selecting a speaker? Now that you know what kind of speaker you want, it's time to decide on what you need to look for in a good speaker. The very first thing that you need to consider is its sound quality. Do you need a speaker that can really offer great sound quality or just an average quality sound? You also need to consider the overall design and its size. Are you more into modern or vintage design? Do you like something that's really small and cute or do you need a speaker that's big and big enough to fit the majority of your house? Our Top 5 Best Loud Speakers for 2018 1. Sonos PLAY:1 – Best Home Speaker This is one of the best speakers that you can get for your home. It's a compact speaker that's designed to fit in any room of your house. It has a pair of 2 inch drivers that are powered by 20 watts of power. The sound quality is really great. You don't need to be an audiophile to enjoy the sound quality that it has. It's easy
