In cats, the cortical sulci may display considerable asymmetry in size and shape. The dorsally situated sulcus limitans displays an apical protrusion, the protuberance of the dorsomedial frontal convexity (DFC) has an apicodorsal and dorsolateral orientation. This latter area lies in close proximity to the confluence of the superior temporal and superior orbital sulci. Moreover, the occipital concavity (OC) displays a ventral and a dorsolateral protrusion. The sulci that are involved in this survey are examined with a view to elucidating the nature and extent of cerebral asymmetry in cats.Can dietary fat composition affect the in vitro cytotoxic activity of anastrazole? To investigate if dietary fat composition may influence the cytotoxic activity of anastrazole against rat hepatoma (HTCA), the main anastrazole metabolite, and against human ovarian adenocarcinoma (SKOV-3) cells. Since both lipids are considered potential modulators of the action of anastrazole, a comparative study was carried out using three different fats: sunflower oil (SU), fish oil (FO) and olive oil (OO). In vitro cytotoxic activity of anastrazole and its metabolite was determined using MTT assay. In the HT-C20 rat hepatoma cell line, the IC50 of anastrazole was 30 +/- 1.7 nM in SU, 28 +/- 1.1
