Cruellest Month' I am honored to announce that I will be one of the crew members on "The Cruellest Month", a new feature film being produced by the likes of award winning actors Sean Rogan and Jeff Branson (the director of "The Nanny Diaries" and "Out of the Blue") and Oscar nominated producer Kent Alterman (writer of "The Merchant of Venice" and "A Beautiful Mind"). In late March the movie will begin production and, after a few weeks of filming, the crew will be led to the Colombian border by a local guide who will introduce them to the Cali River. The team will be staying at a luxurious private jungle camp and, after a month of exploration, will be led back to the border village by another local guide. The journey will culminate when the cast of 11 people departs on a small raft across the river to a local village on the Peruvian side of the border, and is filmed to be finished on April 8th, 2019. This will be a spectacular experience from the very beginning as well as very challenging from the very end. All in all, the movie will have a lot of exciting activities that we will be doing as a crew, but at the same time, the trip will be very theophylline, and effects of a combination of the two on theophylline metabolism in rats. The effects of the combination of thyroxine and sodium valproate on theophylline metabolism were studied in rats using the radiolabeled tracers 14Ctheophylline and 3H-methylurea. Significant potentiation of drug metabolism by the combination was seen in tests with 14Ctheophylline, which yielded dose and time-dependent increases in concentrations of three metabolites, especially 3-methylxanthine. In the case of 14C-theophylline, the levels of the metabolites were increased approximately twofold over controls at the
