I have tried several methods but I only get parsing errors on my console. What I'm trying to achieve is an array of objects. I need to convert it into an object as this is the object that is required by a service. How can I properly convert this into an object that I can push into an array, and that I can also iterate over? The structure of the array is always: [ [0], [1], [2], ... ] It can have more than one entry. EDIT: Thanks for the answers so far, however I'm not sure it's easy what I'm looking for. What I have to achieve is to have an array of objects that is returned from an REST API (Angular and Node). It has the following structure: [ { "id": 1, "name": "John Doe", "enabled": false }, { "id": 2, "name": "Jane Doe", "enabled": true } ] any relative companies that could refer me to a reliable pool in the UK? I purchased a pool that cost around Â£2,400; someone installed the filter and set up my pool. Once they Â£2,000, I assume they were fairly confident they could fix it and I would be happy. However, the pool is now Â£2,500 of unserviceable equipment that I can not afford to fix. Now I realise I am (hopefully) Â£2,500 out of pocket and I'm not going to be offered any refund at all. Obviously I cannot pay them back but do I have any other options? Expert Answers I am really sorry for your trouble. But I can't understand what is wrong with your pool? And your pool company's company is not bad. So how can I help you out? Maybe you can try to find out your pool company's factory, or even email your pool company. If you are sure your pool company will not help you, I am afraid you have no choice but to get some money from your family and friends. However, please consider the possibility of buying a new pool. It's also my first suggestion. I just need to get your essential data off your computer such as pictures, important documents, emails and so forth. I can't do any other damage. How can I please help you? I have installed an upgrade to Win 8.1. I am now being told by Microsoft that Win 8.1 is not upgradeable to Windows 10. I did make the decision to go with Win 10 and that only after much research. It now seems I have a choice of paying someone to help me perform the upgrade or doing it myself. I have been working through the upgrade to Win 8.1 and did you, so, it's time to start with the very first post and take you through the entire journey of my blog. 3.03.2014 Scrapbooking

A year ago I decided to get into scrapbooking. I knew that it would take some time to figure out how to handle it as I could only use the stuff I already had at home, but it turned out to be so exciting and fun that I'll never forget it. I spent a lot of time ordering stuff, searching through shops, browsing Pinterest and just experimenting with different techniques to see what worked for me. Here's how it went. Colour Blocking I started off by using an old picture frame and a mug as my template. I love the gradients in these pages, they're so whimsical and cheerful. I have a folder with a few of these, but this one is my favourite. The frame, photo, and polka dot mugs are from Ikea, so they're a bit more expensive, but they're fantastic quality, and they don't take away from the look of the page in any way. Finding inspiration in everyday life By combining the happiness of scrap
