The idea behind this simple yet useful extension for Opera, going by the name Bulk URL Opener, is to create an easier way of opening, saving, and keeping track of one's numerous tabs, while also avoiding confusion and frustration as one tries to organize whatever goes on in the browser. The extension is indeed helpful to those users who constantly find themselves opening new tabs for various reasons. Open and save links by the dozen The most important feature of this particular extension resides in the name it has been given. Bulk URL Opener does exactly that; it opens tons of links from custom URL addresses you might have created earlier. Just copy and paste the links you've got into the extension's own window, and you'll be greeted by a huge number of tabs almost instantly. You can save your links if you think you'll be using them more than once. There's also the option of editing a list if you no longer require some of its entries. Tab creation delay and some themes While the most important feature does seem to work as expected, one can't help but notice the attention to detail as the developers have included a user-requested feature. Tab creation delay is a short time frame created between each tab opening. Its aim is to avoid straining your browser by simultaneously opening lots of tabs. This is especially useful for situations where there are thousands of links about to be opened. Bulk URL Opener is a simple extension that will help individuals dealing with a constant flow of tabs organize themselves slightly more. The end result will be, like in most similar cases, a rise in productivity, less frustration, and an overall faster response time when browsing. This extension manages to deliver exactly what it advertises. You may have noticed the signs of a webshop's bells and whistles going by the name of Paid Services. Although the site name is not referring to a specific company or some shady business. It is a self-made moniker, originally used in the early days of the Internet just to demonstrate that there's a difference between a service that will let you pay more for better service. Is there really a difference? The reasons for the existence of Paid Services is quite obvious to anyone using some type of similar service. As the Web is growing every year and is now a significant part of people's lives. There's a growing demand for services that is aimed at individuals who are always seeking for the best experience, the smartest experience and the kind of service that they can actually afford. More websites are providing a similar service that seems to be more than a simple extension, offering a bit of paid extra service that will attract new users, users who may not be entirely satisfied with a free service that they already have. Paid Services is one of the most popular extension due to the fact that they let you pay for various extra features for free on websites that will you normally use for free. The most common and the biggest of them all is the ability to stream movies. Not only movies but any other type of media as long as you have a fast and stable Internet connection, you can now either pay for a lot of different sites, movies or even audio books or even just download them for free. With that in mind, it is quite simple to see how important services such as Paid Services could be. It is this type of service that will get people to pay for better results for free without having to go through a lot of annoyances

Move your tabs around how you like. The most important thing is that you can have as many tabs as you want. Copy and paste any links you want. Save any links you need. It's a lot of tab opening and saving for what? Just copy and paste your links. How to Use Bulk URL Opener for Opera 1. Open Bulk URL Opener for Opera. 2. Copy and paste the links that you need to open. 3. Click the Bulk URL Opener's Add. 4. Save your links and close Bulk URL Opener. How to Remove Bulk URL Opener for Opera The main feature of this extension is its ability to open tabs within seconds of adding the links to the extension's window. It accomplishes that by creating a small delay between each click, but this delay works in the best possible way. On the contrary, some users have claimed that the small time between each opening of the tabs makes it difficult to keep track of what they're browsing. However, on average, users can quickly get used to the extension and figure out how to tweak it to their own personal needs. While the extension's most impressive feature is its ability to open tabs in seconds, one may be reluctant to actually use it. If this is the case, Bulk URL Opener isn't a good fit for you, as it requires a little practice before using it effectively. Still, it's an excellent tool for those who struggle with a huge amount of tabs open all the time. As of this writing, Bulk URL Opener hasn't been updated since its release on July 17, 2014. The extension is, however, easily available for download, just click on the link below and you'll be presented with a download manager.// Copyright (c) 2012 The Chromium Authors.
