A high-molecular-weight protein containing epitopes cross-reactive with C1q was isolated from the serum of a patient with severe preeclampsia, as shown by Western blotting. This protein, designated anticoagulant-related protein (A-RP), was suggested to be identical with alpha 2 macroglobulin (alpha 2M). The patient with preeclampsia had a significant increase in serum levels of A-RP, anti-A-RP autoantibody, and C1q-binding activity, but not of alpha 2M-like protein. The new system Many young people lack skills and knowledge that help them to choose, prepare and cook healthy foods, says a new report released by food and nutrition charity Together for Health, with funding from the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Defra). One in five of us needs to improve our cooking skills as a key part of becoming healthier, according to a new report that shows just how important cooking skills are to staying healthy. As it marks its 20th anniversary, the Nestlé Nutrition Partnership is focusing on the need to transform the way children and adults learn and put knowledge into action - so that they can break unhealthy habits. The Nestlé Nutrition

Partnership has worked with policymakers, media and stakeholders across Europe and beyond to explore the role of individual, community and corporate actions to improve childhood nutrition and help families make healthier food choices. The Nest

Sable gave me a little figger of a dagger, quite old I looked at it. "I cannot get an eye!" The old man laughed quietly. "Stolen! Here, now, a better knife." He gave me a bit of steel from his pocket and even offered to sell it, but I felt I must have it. I cut off my finger and handed him the bit of blude as a seal of mine own.

- from GULLIVER'S TRAVELS by Jonathan Swift

Gulliver took his eyes out of his book and looked about the room; -- everyone had gone to sleep. -- "Do not go, Doctor, I hope," said he, "into this corner, where it is so dark, it is enough to bewitch you. I want

- Skill Tree System "Skill" is a term used for a special ability that character characters can equip. "Rank" is used for a special ability that all characters can equip. Characters who develop their own "Rank" can move on to become the next "Rank" and become equipped with "Unique Skills". Characters who lack in Rank will naturally end up with a weaker version of the same ability. A high level skill is an ability that requires a certain Rank to use. - There are a wide variety of classes and skills. - By increasing your skill rank, you can directly equip skills and abilities in conjunction with your class, as well as move on to a higher "Rank". - TACTICS - Achievement system - Battle - Items - Knowledge system - Simple UI - Easy to learn - A streamlined interface - Fun BATTLE COMPONENTS BATTLE! - Characters & Enemies - Classic turn-based battle system - Up to 12 Characters - Multiplayer Battles - Online multiplayer - Asynchronous online play - Battle royale Game highlights - Defeating bosses gives you rewards and contributes to character development, as well as making your existence in the world known. - Rank Up! - Skill Trees - Cross - Alternate Views - Free updates ✧ Game Content (PC)

Here's what I'm doing:

cat convert.sh #!/bin/bash TEST=pbs/pbsinvoke --nohome # send a local file to the pbs/pbsinvoke shell # no simple bash shell - pipe through stdin to pbs/pbsinvoke for i in . do j=$i j=${j//pbs\pbsinv} j=${j//pbs\pbsinv} mv
"$i" "$i".new" rm -f "$i" # end pbs/pbsinvoke shell. echo "end of pbs/pbsinv" exit 0 done Since I'm moving the file to a new name while replacing the string, I added the --nohome argument to prevent the files from being moved over again after they've been replaced. I ran the above code several times and the script would ignore the space and not replace the string. I run the code directly from a terminal, then ran echo "test" >> file.txt ./convert.sh file.txt echo "test" >> file.txt my file.txt file contains: test123 A: In your line: j=${j//pbs\pbsinv} You want the j to be the value of j before the substitution, so you should put a pair of single quotation marks around the substitution:

j='${j//pbs/pbsinv
