Bancha, who spent 14 years at Madrid and won the Champions League with the club, was arrested for alleged sexual crimes at the centre of a sex abuse investigation involving five players from Athletic Club in the town of Alcobendas, north-east of Madrid. Two former coaches - José Ángel Iribar and José Ángel Alva - have already been charged with sexual abuse. Bancha told the Guardian he had informed players at Madrid of problems at the club's youth academy, where he had been running the relationship with the club. "I was simply speaking to my players from the youth team, I was trying to help as best I could and I don't regret speaking to them," he said. "Since I've been in contact with them I felt a great responsibility to help them live the right way." He confirmed that in his role as youth coach he'd been in regular contact with the club's sporting director, Miguel Ángel Lotina, who is now in custody. "When I was with Madrid I was in contact with him regularly, so the other day when I found out, I called him and made sure we were in touch," said Bancha. "I'm very worried about him." Athletic Club's general secretary, Lorenzo Sanz, said that

Postoperative acute lung injury occurs in 5 to 10 per cent of patients and is a potentially lethal condition associated with a high mortality rate. Medical therapy is required, despite the inherent toxicity of these agents. Experimental studies have indicated that leukotriene receptor antagonists are effective in the treatment of the syndrome, and recent clinical studies have shown that this may be clinically beneficial, but there has been little good quality human evidence available to support this. To assess the effect of cortisone and iloprost compared with no treatment, on the management of postoperative acute lung injury. This was a double-blind, placebo-controlled, randomised study. One hundred and three patients with postoperative acute lung injury were entered into the trial. Fifty-six were allocated to each of the treatment groups: cortisone, iloprost, placebo, and no treatment. The primary outcome measure was mechanical ventilation for greater than 7 days. The secondary outcome measures were the requirement for alternative ventilation (non-invasive or non-protective ventilation) for greater than 7 days; the number of patients receiving bronchodilators, systemic steroids, or both at any time during ventilation; the number of ventilator-free days for patients successfully extubated; and the numbers of patients dead or alive at 28 days. Treatment with cortisone or iloprost was not associated with a reduction in the duration of mechanical ventilation (mean 19.9 days and 18.7 days respectively). There was no significant difference in the numbers of patients receiving systemic steroids between the treatment groups, and the patients had similar numbers of ventilator-free days in each group at 28 days. Systemic corticosteroids do
