Discover the best Games & Entertainment. Gold & Gems - No-DVD-Unlockable, Online Trainer.Q: Make text larger when hovered I'm trying to get the text larger when hovered but am a little stumped. When I hover over the tag it changes to the size I want but once I release it returns to its original size. `{{ job.title }} .title:hover.title { font-size: 15px; }` When I hover over the tag it becomes 16px but when I release it back to 15px. Can anyone tell me what's going on. A: You are misunderstanding how `:hover` works. It is not "changing size", it is changing the appearance of the element. It is not the same as applying a style to the element, it is the same as applying a style to the element which has the `:hover` pseudo-class applied to it. So if you want to change the font size when the mouse pointer is on.title, you should do the following: `.title:hover h2 { font-size: 15px; }` Because that will only change the font size when.title:hover is applied, and when.title:hover is applied the h2 element is the element being targeted. When you hover off, you don't need to apply anything, so you can just remove the css: `.title:hover h2 { font-size: 15px; }` If you want to make it bigger when hovering, you need to change the font size: `.title:hover h2 { font-size: 16px; }` Hope this helps Heparanase is a novel component of the extracellular matrix. Heparanase is a heparan sulfate degrading enzyme which can generate specific heparan sulfate-derived oligosaccharides. Heparanase has been cloned, and the catalysis of its specific oligosaccharides has also been shown in vitro. To determine whether or not heparanase acts in vivo, we prepared antibodies against heparanase and produced an enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay
