===== Set in the Forgotten Realms, Nadir is an upcoming 4X deckbuilder where you command a gluttonous empire of over 30 nations to wage war and conquer the world with vicious methods. Amidst all the chaos you must balance pleasure with pain, glory with despotism, expansion with exploration, manipulation and dominance. ===== The World of Nadir: ===== Nadir is set in the Forgotten Realms. A corner of a wild and beautiful world, filled with places you will explore, new lands, ruins, adventurers, creatures and situations you'll be able to devise over a course of your game. Nadir's World Map: ===== Throughout your campaign you will visit a number of worlds and keep an eye on the world map. The world map is huge, so there are many entirely different lands, such as the maddened city of Grazelhall, the dark and wet Woodland and the elegant and mighty city of Taprana. Hundreds of towns and cities lie on the map. They vary in size, resources, culture, portraiture, merchants and goods. If you're an experienced merchant then there are hundreds of items for you to consume, consume and consume some more. However each world also harbours a number of dangerous creatures that can serve as a tasty tidbit. To explore the world map you can select any world and select "Explore" button on the World Map. A new window will open up revealing a big map of your current campaign world. You can zoom in on the map by holding "Control" key and the zooming key. If you wish to travel from one world to the other one click on the "Travel" button on the world map. Level Design: ===== Each world is entirely different in variety, culture and conditions. These worlds are large and full of possibilities. However, Nadir will not be an endless sandbox game. There are things we want you to be able to do, like build your own island, manage your own city-state or set your own laws and rules for your nation. Nadir will be modular, meaning that there will be a number of "chunks" which you are able to import to your own campaign world. This means that you will be

This game uses the Unity engine for the build! The Artwork: The animation is done by me and it was pretty hard work to do! Enjoy :) A: I'm not sure if this is the full game, but the following appears to be the entire game. You play a drone that must fight against a group of enemies, aiming to destroy as many of them as possible. The game has been released as an open source game on github From playing the game, it's obvious that the effect of the laser is not usually lethal, and that it generally just knocks them back. However, it's up to you to destroy the enemies and I guess you can use the saved health from the supplies to heal yourself. SU-E-T-546: Evaluation of Respiratory Motion Blurring in Radiotherapy for Thoracic Cancers. The purpose of the present study is to evaluate the effects of respiratory motion on dose distributions delivered by the conventional 4-MV photon beam to thoracic tumors. Respiratory-gated and non-gated dose distributions in the superior-inferior direction of a thoracic tumor for four scenarios (50, 20, 5, and 1 cm peripheral margins and a breathing control region) were calculated for a 4-MV photon beam. The doses were calculated by two-dimensional dose convolution using a 3 cm by 3 cm tissue equivalent, spherical resolution, heterogeneous equivalent material, and a single static arc. The dose distributions for the non-gated scenarios were compared to the static dose distributions (without respiratory motion). Dose-volume histograms (DVHs) in the breathing control region for these non-gated dose distributions were compared to that for a gated dose distribution. The dose distribution for a breathing control region was superior for the non-gated scenarios when compared to that for a gated scenario in which a motion boundary is incorporated into the treatment planning system. The improvement of the breathing control region was greater in the superior-inferior direction than in the lateral direction. The non-gated scenario failed to provide an adequate dose distribution due to a severe dose gradient in the anterior direction (anterior dose constraint) as well as a significant dose fall-off in the posterior direction (lateral dose constraint). The effects of respiratory motion and gating were successfully simulated using the motion model that corresponds with the chest wall motion of patients with lung cancer. Serological c9d1549cdd

Welcome to the Infinifactory! In this heart-pounding first-person puzzler, you control one of the in-world robots as you work to solve a series of puzzles and problems across the factory floor. As you work, you'll discover that the factory has a dark history and that you are not the first to be trapped inside. You'll need to use your ingenuity to figure out how to work the complex machines and solve the puzzles of this strange and dangerous world. Multiplayer: Multiplayer modes add an exciting new twist to the creative concepts and gameplay of the solo campaign. Meet up with your friends in online matchmaking to test your skills and abilities in creative and competitive player-versus-environment scenarios. Graphics: An attractive, darkly humorous aesthetic delivers an immersive and engaging experience. The in-game environments and characters possess a unique hand-painted, tactile quality that only Unreal Engine 4 can provide. Enemies: Demonic robots called "Attendants" patrol the factory to maintain the status quo. Interacting with them is the only way to discover the secrets of the Infinifactory. DUST 514: Liberation Countdown Find out the time and date of The Bounty Hunter's Evacuation or The Strategy Guide to Liberation as we countdown to the final evacuation. We will also cover tips, tricks, secrets and the reasoning behind all the decisions in the game. For more info on The Strategic Guide to Liberation, please refer to the link below. What's new in The Forge Squad Soundtrack:

Owned by Bomber Command Red Meggs (Knob Tree) Byjak Red Meggs was a de Havilland Mosquito IVc in C/grp 612, Lincs, on 18/11/45. He was a 9/c When he was brought over to Hull I recommended that he be reported in to HQ Block Nighter (II/BC) to stop any Civil Aviation complaint against the NAAFI, for the BOMBER Command to be held at fault. As he had never been to Portsmouth. [As well as not having been seen at the Devonport station, he had missed the Bulwer line tail off to Dartford] Consequently a Vickers VC1A rev-G in CC 040 on 31/10/45 was reported in to NAAFI headquarters. The following day, two AE 109s, the same squadron, was seen to possibly write down my Yellow ring on the rear fuselage. Both aircraft were loss of contact over Hamble at 1816hrs. Report for an aircraft from C9@61 was sent to Devonport, de Havilland Met 2028 at Devonport until 0900hrs the following day, the aircraft did not turn up as expected. [SS19H] Red Meggs was sighted again, this time on 29/10/45 by Squadron Leader Durnford of B 31, when he was returning from Hamble, between Beachy Head and Gibstone. Altitude, 100 feet, at an approximately 24 mph speed. In tracer trap at height, zero range. Red Meggs was last reported on the 2/11/45, flying along the Salisbury road, on fire. Sighted again one year later, 10/9/46, flying along the Salisbury road, a probable, 15/2/48 one mile east of Cliff, Langton. At Dorking the bomber was treated as if it were at fire. On the 24/3/50 one of his sisters booked a shooting holiday at the Craigkerry Inn, Galloway, Edinburgh. While there she noticed that Red Meggs still had
