Power up your Stranger and embark on this optional dungeon with unique music, enemies and obtain the magnificent unique treasure by defeating Queen Rafflesia. Behold the mysterious Queen Rafflesia and witness her vile plant form. The faces on this beings head is a beautiful blend of her horrifyingly beautiful flower heads. This flower emits a dark fog that lowers morale and drains physical stats, and is an evil plant you want no part in. She's resistant to fire and poison but not special abilities. She's also known to carry a fatal disease. That disease - infecting those who deal damage to her - is treated with a plant sap that can grant the player a temporary boost in speed. The sap regains potency the more damage you deal her. Unfortunately, the only known way to deal damage to Rafflesia is with special abilities. In addition, the damage her green fog deals has a chance to give her immunity. WARNING: As her plant form is untargetable and much easier to kill without special abilities, she is a great challenge with special abilities and knowledge of the dungeon layout. There is a glass window next to the door. The window is not the regular square looking window. It is vertically split with a black colored door in the middle. On the left side of the window there is an "L" and on the right side, there is a small "N." The short "R" is not necessary but is still present, and there are three boxes visible on the floor. A half circle, two triangles and four squares are on the floor. There is a lock and a key in front of each box. There are two light switches but only the bottom left switch is working. The switch is on and the door has been opened. Click to activate audio! Robot F.L.O.T. This room is absolutely not a normal room. It is a small living room. The boxes are gone. Also, most of the things are lying on the floor. The furniture has been thrown on the floor. The chair and desk are further away from the window. Frot is lying in this bed. He is close to the window but not close enough to the open door. In this bed lies Frot. It is 7 AM and Frot is changing all the settings on his laptop. Frot: "Wait a minute. Frot is a pink but there is nothing pink in here!"

Room Description The room has some mild decorations. There is a lamp on the left corner but no lamps in the room. There are some pieces of toys in a box on the floor. There is a white duster over the bed. There are pillows on the bed.

Fighting Style Robot F.L.O.T. Is a frustrated robot with the armor. Frot has two buttons beside the screen and the joystick. He has a mechanical arm instead of his two turtle shells. The mechanical arm is light gray. It has some components on it. One of them is a five fingered hand instead of two. Instead of two blades the robot has a saw instead with its claws. It is a mechanical front leg and another light gray mechanical leg behind it, and finally a right leg too.

I had to make 2 characters with completely different personalities and levels. I don't even know why there is no option of that anywhere, but I got it to work. Had 2 Stakes instead of 1, so I had to upgrade to a better character to get additional Stakes,

Q: creating files in a file HI all, I am trying to create a file with files I have written this line, bin = open("D://logs.txt","w+") print("enter","hello..") print(b'hello world') print(b'please enter') but how the hell is it creating logs.txt instead of logs.txt.txt A: Writing to the same file twice results in a File File. To force the file to have a new file every time you write to it, you need to pass a new file object every time you write. The do notation is the way to do that: f = open("D://logs.txt","w+") print("Enter","helloi..") print(b'hello world') print(b'please enter') f.write(b'hello World') f.close() This is also an example of how to open files in text mode. If you are writing binary data you do something like this: f = open("D://logs.txt","w+b") print("Enter","helloi..") print(b'hello world') print(b'please enter') f.write(b'hello World') f.close()

Monday, March 18, 2014 Intelligent observation Jenelle's assessment of the situation is right. She is clear-eyed and can imagine solutions that other students wouldn't see. She was inspired by me to try writing a stanza that she could recite. "I looked at the steeple, And I wondered if the Lord was in the steeple," she recited, "or the steeple was in the Lord." And on she went, with her eye to searching, "I looked at the steeple, And the steeple looked at me." When she
