For young children, matching games are a fun and educational way to help them develop their auditory skills, which helps them develop their spatial abilities, logical thinking skills, and pattern recognition skills. In this match game, kids from 0-8 years old will be encouraged to play with it. Kids can look for the numbers of the objects on the board. The more numbers you find, the more points you gain. Kids need to match the numbers on the objects to numbers on the board. They need to match them in the same color. There are also numbers, shapes, and pictures on the board for kids to match as well. Kids can match and find the combination of the numbers, shapes, and pictures on the board in any color. Matching the numbers on the board or discovering the pattern of a shape is the winning way to score the points. Two toy cars, one red and one blue, will be guiding your kids. Kids can collect candies and tokens on the board or collecting stars will lead to more bonus points. WHAT'S NEW IN THIS UPDATE: *v2.2 update: 1. P.s. What's new in Wilbur's Quest:

: Big Ten Edition Big Ten Football

Northwestern vs. Penn State 1) The famous 1970 stripes and yellow jersey in the Tunnel won't stay the same forever. Northwestern alum and ESPN personality John Blanchette "I guarantee you those NU jerseys aren't going back to that NU uniform. We're a power conference, I'm a national conference. If you're not a Power Five conference, you know where you sit." 2) Penn State, still upset about last season's loss to Northwestern, will be motivated to finish its season on the right foot. The Nittany Lions have lost in the Big Ten Semifinals twice — in 1996 against No. 3 Maryland (Victory Bell) and 2005 to No. 10 Michigan (Bush push and fourth-quarter comeback). Penn State followed up those games with two more wins over No. 18 Wisconsin (Nittany Lions kicker Cody Zeller) and Ohio State. 3) Paternovich is becoming known for what he posts on Twitter, taking the Penn State program to the next level in a unique way. 4) Besides Zeller, the Nittany Lions have a great backfield (Scott Zolak, John Urschel and Akeel Lynch), but they aren't tight ends. That, along with the Northwestern game, could become the story of the season for Penn State. 5) Northwestern, which is 0-2 in the Big Ten, is going to come up even more big-time with returner Malcolm Shields. Shields has three touchdowns as a kick returner and has three catches for 34 yards on the season, most of which have been on third and fourth downs in the past six games. In the Northwestern-Michigan game, Shields returned a kickoff from the 50 for a 62-yard score. He then had a 87-yard kickoff return to go with a punt return against Minnesota, and a 63-yard punt return against No. 17 Ohio State. Shields is 6-for-6 on third down this season. His presence alone could make Northwestern dangerous in the Big Ten. Watch this review There are only 30 games on TV in the Big Ten, compared to the huge 50-game SEC slate, but that does present opportunities, even with the Big Ten on many cable systems. One of the ways the Big Ten Network allows for more Big Ten
