In Deep Sea Thirteen follows the adventures of Colin Strong through 13 chapters of branching choices and cinematic sequences. A gripping adventure that thrusts the player into the dynamic underwater world of the Polaris, the Sea of Stars and its contrasting civilizations with a full orchestral score. In the story line of the game, the world's bounty and morality is no longer controlled by our three common "superior" races, but by the four ancient races that colonized the Polaris. The stories you tell yourself and your friends in the Polaris are what decide whether the benevolent or the selfish will dominate. This game is intended for mature players only. The game is rated "18" for violence, strong language, profanity, nudity, and strong sexual themes.Uptake of tibolone in breast and endometrial cancer cells in vitro. This study evaluated the uptake of tibolone and its derivatives in two human endometrial cancer cell lines and six human breast carcinoma cell lines. Pharmacological ligands were used to distinguish between uptake mediated by receptor-mediated transport and passive diffusion. Based on our data, it can be assumed that tibolone enters tumour cells by passive diffusion. The permeability was similar in both cell lines and strongly influenced by the concentration of ligand. The data suggest that the uptake of a potential drug or its derivatives is hampered by the large diameter of an intact cell.Q: How to troubleshoot GPS Device with device not found I have a application where I'm pulling location from the GPS. When I start my device, it was OK, it was able to get GPS location. At some point, I noticed my device not found the GPS any more. It took many attempts (I'm not going to waste battery talking here, just for you to understand what I'm talking about). My question is what do I have to do in order to debug this? Is there any procedure to check and if yes, how? I tried a lot of things, but all what I got is "device not found". If I disable the GPS, it works just fine, but if I turn it back on again, it takes a lot of time to get the location. I would love to share some code if needed, but I really don't know what to share (if it is needed). A: Based on my experience, yes, the GPS can be completely lost at times... EMENT v. DIAMOND MINE CO. United States Supreme Court AFTERBURNEMENT v. DIAMOND MINE CO., (1998) No. 96-844 Argued: June 9, 1997 Decided: May 19, 1998 In this action for a judgment declaring that petitioner Afterburner Corporation (Afterburner) was responsible for overpayment of taxes during the period it owned a coal mine in Wills Point, Wyoming, respondent Diamond Mine Company (Diamond) brought an action against the United States pursuant to 26 U.S.C. § 7422(a) for a refund of taxes and penalties allegedly paid in error. After a trial in the district court, the court declared that the taxes and penalties were paid in error. On petitioner's appeal, the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed. The sole question before this Court is whether a mine operator, which acquires a tax-exempt federal coal permit, is required to pay taxes when its operations are interrupted by a fire which is subsequently extinguished by an outside agency. Held: because to have done so would have been in violation of other applicable federal statutes and regulations, petitioner is not liable for the taxes under review. SHARON B. BLACKMAR, J., delivered the opinion of the Court, in which THOMAS A. CLARK, J., joined. ROBERT H. CLELAND, J., filed an opinion concurring in the judgment. APPEARANCES: Michael S. Berch, Michael S. Berch, Jr., Corpus Christi, Texas, for petitioner. John Cornish and Phillip Crump, Washington, D.C., for respondent. OPINION SHARON B. BLACKMAR, Justice. This is an action for a refund of taxes and penalties paid pursuant to a mistaken [Afterburner v. Diamond Mine Co.,] 115 F.3d 1261 (10th Cir. 1997) cert. tao. 523 U.S. 906 (1998). It appears that On December 21, 1985, the Director of the Bureau of Land Management for the [[59]] United States Department of the Interior promulgated a regulation requiring mine operators holding federal permit covering unmined coal seams to maintain contiguity of their operations ("Regulation 550"). One of the ways to do this is by shifting the audience's attention to a new part of the room: the ceiling. The ceiling can often be ignored in most games, but it can have an important role in making the player feel like they're inside the scene being played, inside a room, inside a new world. And it's a space that the eyes can move around, expanding the player's field of view.
