A feminist game about infertility, forgiveness and the healing power of friendship. Olivia and Malorie are best friends, but the lifelong friendship between the two women has always been complicated. When Olivia is diagnosed with unexplained infertility, her doctor refers her to a fertility specialist who also happens to be Malorie's estranged husband. As their friendship becomes strained, she must decide how to best understand what Malorie is going through. Infertility and the desire to have children can be a painful, isolating experience. Writer-director Dawn Varney was inspired to make this film as a way to honor the women she loves, and to honor the interconnectedness of friendship—no matter how long-standing. Have a career change?
