Car Warrior is a turn-based wargame about commanding a convoy of vehicles in the post-apocalyptic wastelands of the outback. Command your convoy in thrilling combat battles with enemy warbands. In order to attack a warband, you must locate a gap in their formation. If you can attack a warband in an opening they will retreat and you will win the battle. You can take over warbands' vehicles to loot them and take their resources. You can command your convoy to travel to the nearest megacity to buy supplies, equipment, and fuel. Build your own caravan of vehicles and improve it with the loot you have acquired. Continue to create war rigs until your caravan reaches the end of the road. Key Features: • Have your convoy fight its way through the post-apocalyptic outback wasteland in turn-based battles for resources. Loot the losers and improve your convoy. Survive until you reach civilization or perish along the way. • Command your convoy of vehicles in challenging battles against warbands that are roaming the outback. Throughout the game these battles will grow from small skirmishes between a couple of cars to full blown battles between dozens of war rigs. • Customize your vehicles: Loot the vehicles, weapons, defences, people, and resources of the warbands you defeated. Expand the number of vehicles in your convoy. Customize each vehicle with weapons, defences, and passengers. • Survive the outback: Attack and loot warbands and settlements in the outback to obtain the supplies and fuel to keep on driving. Surrounded by ferocious beasts, quick-witted dwarfs, and magic made by moonlight, Sahgaire will have to save his own skin, even if he risks tossing everything he holds dear, including elves, trolls, and the magic book, into the fire. Book Preview The Last Sorcerer - Dunhaven Chapter One The stranger coming out of the library with a strange library book in his hand turned to me and said, "Thanks for the help," in such a pleasant voice, it was hard to believe that the man was actually talking to me. I was deep in thought, lost in my own crazy head, and hadn't actually noticed the man come in until he spoke. The library was pretty much empty, except for me and him. I wasn't even sure how he could have guessed that this was where I would most likely be. I thought that because of the title on the front of the book, named the Tome of Shaggorah the Primordial, that he probably must have had a link to the book, how else could he know where the book would be? But the fact was, that I could see the title and know that I had to be near the library would be enough to point him my way. He might even have been out of the library for a long time and just happened upon it by chance. Or more likely, someone had put the word out over the village that he was looking for a book on fire. He took the book, turned around and started walking through the archway and out of my sight. I watched him for a while, searching through the pages in the library, looking for something I would recognize. I think I hoped to find some great image of some giant
