Features Key:

- KOF97 will have 3 alphabets: Alpha, Beta and Untouched.
- All KOF97 players worldwide, regardless of nationality, can play against each other in this game mode.
- The game mode will conduct a round-robin tournament, in which players compete against each other as they go through the alphabets via matches.
- Each player can choose his or her own alphabets. The player who wins the alphabets in his/her round will choose the next alphabet (which will usually be an "Untouched" alphabet) by using an in-game menu.
- In the end of each alphabet, the best 5 score points (or the total score points of the player) is recorded.
- Winning achievements can be unlocked in the tournament.
- If the best player within an alphabet has only a point over his/her opponent, the clear advantage will be increased.
- The best player among the 3 alphabets, nicknamed "King of Fighters," will be awarded a sports award.

Brief features of the tournament stages and rule document:

- Decide whether to host your own computer or change your current KOF97 computer into the tournament host computer.
- You can use only one machine, but it is recommended that you use 3 or more rather than only one when putting on a tournament.
- During the run of a tournament, monitor the events and proceed the jury.
- The notified jury is a member of KOF97 developers. The judgment is 50% based on the "winning opinion" and the other 50% is based on the results of the trial.
- The judgment is evaluated according to the following points:
 - Stable connection with the Internet
 - Convenient log-in and log-out
 - Availability of a tournament hall
 - Functionality of the scoring system

Red Sight is a 2d side-scrolling action game which focuses on survival. You're a black and white guy who has been infested with a snake and taken out of his normally peaceful home. If you have no guns or you don't think you're up to the task, maybe the snake is just what you need to keep yourself safe. You've been infected with a virulent snake bite and are now a victim of the curse. -I like to create games that have a lot of graphics and deep gameplay. I am sure you will like it too.-Developing a game is not easy. Games are made from many pieces, you can't make them in an afternoon. I need more than 20 hours to develop a game.-Please feel free to contact me via the mail, Facebook or the game mail:Pages Thursday, February 24, 2015 Saying Goodbye to 2015 So I'm sitting in my office on my new Android tablet, surfing through my calendar on my computer, and I realize that I have more months of 2015 on my calendar than there are days of the year, so this has to be said. That's when I remembered that it's time to put my 2017 goals into play. I've been putting off goals because I've been working so hard to survive each day. To me, that's a bad strategy. It's hard to work hard and do well at something that you're not enjoying or find yourself doing for the sake of it. So this year I'm going to tackle my goals a little differently. 1. Get more organized I've been working on making my business more organized, but I need to take it a step further and actually accomplish it. With that in mind, I think that I need to do a more in-depth review of my systems and my business. So far I've been tracking my gross sales and bookings via Excel, and I'm now working on putting it all into a model. The goal is to have a system that I know works and is reliable so that I can easily, quickly, and effortlessly track all of my income and expenses each month. It's not a done deal yet, but I'm already more excited about it than I was about my taxes this year. 2. Get more social I'd like to try something new this year, a meeting model that allows people to meet each other and share ideas. I feel like this would be a fantastic opportunity for me to meet and work with other entrepreneurs to learn from and help each other. My goal is to start this in April, when I'll be hosting a 10-day virtual retreat (hope to have that up sometime in March). It's not an open call for people to come and we'll meet in person, but I think that this would be a great opportunity to get to know each other more intimately before making a commitment to work

What's new:

: a post-apocalyptic role-playing game, designed to take advantage of the free form nature of this new weapon. I wanted to use this to create the smallest operating system in the known universe. Design your own PC, then tailor your experience to your needs. I cant wait to see what people make with this gun! The system is open source under my GNU General Public License, available at: Hardware Here is all the info on the hardware we decided to make. Well worth reading to get more insight into what this is all about! Behavior: Acts like a Lacking button, or a button! Designed with different tactical and economic thinking for players on the edge of survival: Up to 4 group members, all with their own sub-team. Used most typically in combination with a military diving watch. Supports third party components from anarchists to liberal elements. Designs behavioral and crisis response buttons on different components. Audio A piezo track and joystick module can create a sound effect for a variety of actions or emotions. Components These components are made of rubberized, or fray-cut memory foam to ensure a snug, durable fit. They are all covered with double-sided Velcro, so they are easy to customize. Dice rolling component comes in a variety of colors. A fully functional space grey dice roller that can roll up to twenty-five dice, with one stylized side to represent the number you're rolling at any time. Or a mono-color reverse side to represent the natural revolution of the sun. A joystick component is designed to be operated with one hand and to resemble a standard official joystick. Or as they say in Canada: Button component designed to look like a standard push button. Glass ball component designed to look like a standard glassball. Here is a spool designed with a memory foam grip. It can be printed with words or pictographs, or again can have cutouts that are eye-grabbing designs. This piece is equipped with interior silk-screen ink that prevents the outer overlay from printing through. New recyclable "clover" papers are made from trees that have been felled for their wood, not harvested in The Old Country (the UK). The paper itself is 20 microns thick, just refined enough to
