mac. Disney Cruise Line will stop selling cabins on Royal Caribbean's new Harmony of the Seas ship, a move the cruise line says reflects the "unique and differentiated nature" of its experience. Royal Caribbean Cabins on Harmony will cost more than those on other Royal Caribbean ships, but are likely to sell faster because they are spread out more evenly and have fewer moving parts. The ship is a massive affair, and at 5,920 feet (1,810 meters) long, Harmony will be about 550 feet (170 meters) longer than the 4,035-foot (1,170 meter) cruise line's current flagship, the Oasis of the Seas, and the 5,000-foot (1,524-meter) Future of Transportation ship under construction. Harmony will have 531 suites, compared with only 284 on the Oasis, and 247 on the Future, and is much more advanced in terms of cabin design and technology. Royal Caribbean has the U.S. market to itself when it comes to cruise ship hull designs, as Carnival Corporation -- the world's largest cruise operator -- has similar but different designs. The luxurious space, with nine dining venues, five pools and a new show-within-a-show, will be its biggest attraction, Royal Caribbean said. Royal Caribbean CEO Adam Goldstein said during a conference call with investors that the new ship, to be completed in 2016, is targeted for "high-level guests" traveling with kids and families and some adults who want to socialize with guests of similar age and interests. Cabins will be spaced more evenly, with more than 30 decks. "The new ship will be very distinct and very different from our existing ships... It will be our most luxurious ship," Goldstein said. Royal Caribbean launched the Symphony of the Seas earlier this year, to build on the success of the Summit of the Seas and Legend of the Seas, two newer ships that are so large the cruise line had to mount the lifeboats on the stern in the water.

The new ship's capacity will be more than twice as much as the Oasis and Future combined.
Harmony will have three
