Effective medical care must be provided to those affected by a mass casualty incident regardless of the severity of their injuries. A brief review of current methods of mass casualty incidents was followed by a description of some principles of the management of mass casualty incidents. Mass casualty incidents can be successfully managed with well trained and appropriately equipped civilian medical staff and a pre-designated mass casualty incident facility. The medical staff must have at their disposal adequate and appropriate equipment for mass casualty incidents, and be trained in its use. The mass casualty incident facility must be designed to respond rapidly to the influx of casualties and ready to accommodate the full range of casualties.Tag: dance Dancers often tend to have a few practice tips that they repeat throughout the whole year, whether the dancers themselves realize it or not. When you are a dancer, you tend to believe what you see, and when you start seeing the same technique over and over again, you get really desensitized to it. However, this is no reason to stop practicing or stop following those exercise guidelines,
