12.Q: Laravel 5.2. Omitting field from relationship with query builder I want to generate a query builder object to return 3 Model instances, 1 of which relationship relations were omitted from. For example, from the following data structure: `public function store(StoreRequest $request) { $store = new Store($request->all()); $store->save(); return $this->show($request); }` I'd like to generate the following relationship list: `[0] => Array ( [store_id] => 1 [name] => Store Name 1 ) [1] => Array ( [store_id] => 2 [name] => Store Name 2 ) [2] => Array ( [store_id] => 3 [name] => Store Name 3 )`

This is the closest I have got, but it's obviously not perfect and as I understand it, the relationship query builder is just SQL so I have included fetching the relations in the query builder which I'm not sure I'm happy with. `public function show($request) { return User::with(['stores as'=> function($query) { $query->select(['stores.id','stores.name']); $query->orderBy('stores.name', 'asc'); }]) ->whereHas('stores.id', $request->id) ->get(); }` So is there any way to create a query builder object using the relationship object to omit a field from the relationship relationship? A: Method you are using currently is wrong. Instead of: `User::with(['stores as'=> function($query) { $query`
