Summary of the law The Ministry of Health issued guidelines for the management of infertility in Pakistan in 2013. These guidelines are intended to assist local healthcare providers in the provision of infertility care. The guidelines recommend that infertility investigations be performed by a qualified consultant working in accordance with standard local practice. A summary of guidelines issued by the Ministry of Health: Degree of certainty of having an infertility problem Women who are over 35 years of age are referred to a doctor to confirm if they have primary or secondary infertility. Women between the ages of 30 and 35 years with more than 1 year of unprotected intercourse are referred for infertility investigations. Women between the ages of 25 and 29 with more than 6 months of unprotected intercourse and women between the ages of 24 and 28 with more than 12 months of unprotected intercourse are referred for infertility investigations. Women who have had a full-term pregnancy are not referred for infertility investigations unless there are associated factors. Women with a history of infertility may be referred for investigation of an infertility problem even if they have not experienced any missed periods or pain. If there is a history of infertility, women are usually referred to specialists for further management. Investigations Women between the ages of 30 and 35 years
