The Ontario-based company, which owns MGM Resorts International and Australia's Crown Ltd., intends to add the city's first signature luxury hotels to the open-air Shangri-La Hotel and Casino, which was opened in 1989. The opening of the Shangri-La and Mandalay Bay is key to competing with those venues, the head of Las Vegas's hotel-casino trade group said. It is also expected to woo wealthy Chinese tourists, who are now avoiding U.S. resorts, which are perceived as unsafe. "A year ago, Shanghai was $70 billion and here was $70 billion and now, they are looking at each other," said Brian Gordon, president and CEO of the Las Vegas Hotel-Casino Association. "That's our best shot for long-term growth and Mandalay Bay could be the platform." MGM Resorts, Mandalay Bay and the Canadian firm Square One International are developing the towers. Square One, an international private equity firm focused on hotel, casino and tourism investments, will contribute $1.5 billion from Hong Kong, its director Nick Wong said.
