In a statement on its website, JLR said the new factory will be in the north of England and that it will produce the new version of the Range Rover. "We'll be bringing 1,000 new jobs to the region, alongside a further 1,500 apprenticeships, from 2019 onwards," David Munro, Jaguar Land Rover's CEO, said in the statement. "You're currently part of a world-leading automotive centre, and by investing in the UK we're making sure that remains the case for decades to come," he said. Land Rover had seen seven successive years of profit decline, which company insiders blamed on a decline in the sales of new vehicles in the region. The company has a history of complaining about the amount of money that UK public sector subsidies are costing it. In 2015, it launched a court action, aimed at forcing the government to foot the bill for its new vehicle-manufacturing plant in the north of England. we affirm the trial court on this question and make no further comment. See Long v. State, 895 So. 2d 318, 349 n.30 (Miss. 2004) (stating that this Court "cannot decide an issue, or even hypothesize the answer, on a question not briefed or raised below"). ¶23. For all the foregoing reasons, we affirm Davis's convictions and sentences, with the remark that the trial court is instructed to c6a93da74d
