Older people who live in the community are more likely to experience a range of health problems, which can have a profound and pervasive impact on their lives. It is clear that the social environment plays a major role in the lives of older people. It provides continuity and structure, encourages social contact, and contributes to the development of identity. It can also impact on the quality of a person's life, through the support of positive relationships, promotion of health, and the maintenance of equilibrium, resulting in a general sense of well-being. This paper reviews the literature on the social factors influencing the well-being of older people. The paper concludes with recommendations regarding social interventions for this vulnerable group of older people.Q: Specify route templates in configuration Is it possible to specify route templates in the application's configuration?
