given the concerns raised by the rss, a task force of the ncert appointed by the central government in the education ministry was formed to examine the historical content of the ncert textbooks on the subject of india from prehistoric times to the nineteenth century. in november 2018, the task force submitted its report to the ministry, which then circulated the report to the ncert. the report recommended that certain chapters on history be removed or rewritten. the text books were rewritten by the ncert and a standards-based curriculum framework (sb-ccf) was introduced in school curricula. the chapters that were in question are: “the epic of ramayana”, “the epic of the mahabharata”, “ancient india”, “indian society in the early middle ages”, “sarasvati”, and “saraswati river”. the task force recommended that the ramayana chapter should be removed from the history syllabus, and the mahabharata chapter should be updated. the task force recommended that the “saraswati river” chapter, about the history of the saraswati river, should be removed or rewritten.

the task force recommended that a separate chapter on “indian society in the early middle ages” should be introduced instead of the history chapter on “saraswati river”. there is no separate chapter on “saraswati river” in the ncert textbooks. the task force recommended that the first chapter of “saraswati” should be removed from the history syllabus. the 'indian highway' installation at the serpentine gallery was accompanied by a booklet (introduced by kunal sen) in which a series of essays and short stories link the artworks and their themes to the history, culture, and politics of india. the book features a companion website
