the saili simulator launcher has been developed with the explicit intention of being compliant with the new fsf's gnu general public license (gpl) version 3. the launcher has been developed with a particular focus on providing a software tool that supports users in easily installing saili without requiring them to have a working knowledge of the linux operating system and the related components. the launcher can be installed directly on any x86 linux machine. the launcher itself is capable of running a single simulator or a single pair of simulators. it can run saili in an interactive mode (or interactive emulation mode) or in a non-interactive mode. the simulator launcher also has a set of script files that can be used to easily create new saili simulators, both single simulators and pairs of simulators. the script files are provided as a way of creating saili simulators in an easy-to-follow way without requiring the user to have a working knowledge of the saili command line options. if a user wants to run a pair of simulators they need only to use the provided script files and specify
