Fuck Deep [CRACKED] Freeze V6.20

our love of our consciousness has led some to dream of uploading a consciousness into the cloud, or nanotechnology that can heal disease keeping us more fit to extend our consciousness, super intelligent machines that amplify consciousness, and programming our dna to be fitter, happier, and thus have an optimal access to consciousness. ideas of this nature have all but permeated our technological imagination to the point which most lay people can no longer distinguish fact from fiction. scientific journalism will proclaim at once how far from these fictions we actually are today, then carelessly attribute the word thinking to the activity of a new algorithm, embedding a covert logic deep in our bio-hardware. singularity, or the belief that we as thinking animals can transcend our biology, to such extent that we merge with machines of our own creation, inaugurating a new era of super-human intelligence that runs at the speed of light and is benevolent, solving the problems of its past, curing our diseases, saving us, absolving us all at the same time has intoxicated humans in growing numbers (the chief of engineering at google, for one). our love of our consciousness has led some to dream of uploading a consciousness into the cloud, or nanotechnology that can heal disease keeping us more fit to extend our consciousness, super intelligent machines that amplify consciousness, and programming our dna to be fitter, happier, and thus have an optimal access to consciousness. ideas of this nature have all but permeated our technological imagination to the point which most lay people can no longer distinguish fact from fiction. scientific journalism will proclaim at once how far from these fictions we actually are today, then carelessly attribute the word thinking to the activity of a new algorithm, embedding a covert logic deep in our bio-hardware. singularity, or the belief that we as thinking animals can transcend our biology, to such extent that we merge with machines of our own creation, inaugurating a new era of super- human intelligence that runs at the speed of light and is benevolent, solving the problems of its past, curing our diseases, saving us, absolving us all at the same time has intoxicated humans in growing numbers (the chief of engineering at google, for one).

Fuck Deep Freeze V6.20

i left work last friday due to an extremely debilitating headache. i was assured that it was just a tension headache and that its not related to my tinnitus. my wife and i were both stressed out and overworked at the time. i went to my next visit and my symptoms were much better than the week prior. i waited until yesterday to call the doctor to see how i was doing and request an appointment for wednesday and for today to test my blood sugars. i just returned from my first sub-freeze emergency with my blood sugar at 1.3. it was the wrong number and i almost blacked out. at this point i am very afraid of going back to work. i am having serious anxiety and am not sure i can handle it any more. i will not be able to live on what i have learned of this disorder alone. i am contemplating changing jobs. i have never felt more like an outcast in my life. i had my surgery (otoplasty) on june 15th. i had no pain during surgery and there was no physical discomfort (other than excessive swelling) once i was home. i just woke up yesterday with a headache (thunderclap migraine). my doctor said this was "normal." i spent the entire day in bed and have had little to no energy since. i have begun to think that i am finally able to hear the tinnitus and will never be rid of it. i thought i would have a tremendous amount of pain, but the actual experience was underwhelming. i didn't even feel a thing. i can't really tell when the tinnitus started, but i have no idea how long it has been going on. i can't believe the timing with this surgery. i never should have taken the medication. the horrible thing is that i have no strength in my shoulders now, which doesn't affect me during my work days or at home, but when i have to lift anything (ie laundry, dishes) it is almost impossible. 5ec8ef588b
