63. BRUNO MARS - Alligator It's hard not to think of prolific artist and producer Bruno Mars when you hear the name Alligator. More than the jazz fusion ambient vibe of his debut, 2011's Unorthodox Jukebox, Alligator is his most dance-pop album to date. It's definitely a lot more poppy and upbeat than Unorthodox Jukebox was. And yet, one of the album's two biggest albums, the mega-hits Grenade and the title track, are centered around a lullaby that recalls Matty Matlock's cold bedroom tunes in 50s Britain. Bruno Mars is a reclusive musical creation. On Alligator, the guy stops acting like an eccentric musical nut and is now the talented producer of a high-profile group. Considering that, Alligator is a success on so many levels and an upbeat, positive record at that. 75. JONAS BROTHERS - Aême Loca Aême Loca is the good kind of pop. It's not afraid to tell it how it is and express itself emotionally. Even in a record full of sing-a-longs, the song of the year is the Latin pop-infused Amame Ya . The Jonas Brothers seem to have found their own sound on the album that is a little more stripped down and heartfelt than the dance-pop they cut their teeth on. It's not exactly a departure from the last couple albums, but it certainly takes the Brothers in a new direction. Their lyrics have a depth that they've never had before, and the sound reflects that. (Plus, I still have a soft spot for brothers with Indian last names.) 28. SAVAGES - Snakes and Arrows The Cranberries were at their best when they mixed art-pop smarts with pop-punk energy and angst. (Their final self-titled album was a perfect encapsulation of that approach.) The Portland, Oregon, band, Savages, thankfully didn't take the songwriting approach the Cranberries were known for on the first two albums, and then went in a different direction, as Jeremy Jay and Keith Morris released their debut album Snakes and Arrows this summer.

70. new mamma - the last (deluxe edition) the best thing about new m&ms' first release, the last, was the nostalgia factor. it was full of music from the 50s, 60s and 70s. it recalled the music i heard as a teenager and i can say that that soundtrack still captures me. the last is not only an album that captures the essence of that musical age. it's an album that also evokes memories of my childhood. i had a blast revisiting the sounds of days gone by, and listening to the songs that defined the era. the last is the kind of album you wish you could revisit any time you want to. you don't have to worry about it not being relevant, because it is timeless. i can't wait to relive some of those musical moments as i listen to the album. this collection of music is also a perfect gift for anyone who is a fan of the musical era that inspired it. i can't think of a better way to spend the holiday season. favorite tracks: you can't stop the beat feelin' so good creepin' up on you fever do your thing i don't know love is strange 32. zz top - el paso the legendary el paso has been released on vinyl. the album was recorded during the band's debut u.s. tour in 1972. it was the beginning of a successful career. the album was recorded in front of an audience at the latin american club, where the band played nearly every song from their new album. the band's leader, billy gibbons, is also seen in the audience, dressed in the band's trademark spiffy leather duds. gibbons then hits the stage with the rest of the band. el paso is the album that launched a thousand other albums. it's the kind of record that you wish you could have been there to see the band play. but you can still buy the album and hear the band's first album, which is a great moment for fans of this legendary group. favorite tracks: la grange the party's over viva las vegas d.m.r. i got stoned good times roll sangria
