the beta program has ended for inflow 2.5.0, and 2.1 is now available for download! in this release we have added a few additional features and improvements. specifically, we have been working on adding pdf export functionality, which will allow you to export your inventory document as a pdf file, allowing you to send your inventory data to your accounting software of choice as a pdf file (which can be opened by most accounting software). you can now make changes to your inventory data in the field manager screen and see the changes immediately in the field manager document. in the previous version of inflow, it was necessary to manually sync the changes made in the field manager screen to the inventory document. we have also upgraded our api to 1.7.1 so that quickbooks enterprise users can use inflow as a solution for inventory, making it easier than ever to make updates to your inventory data in quickbooks enterprise. the marketplace in inflow is also updated to version 2.1 and we are actively working on getting the functionality for this updated and improved! we are very excited to announce the release of the new inflow version, 2.5.1, which has been in the making for the past several months. we have seen some great improvements in usability and performance in this release and have also received many great feedback from our customers. in this release, we have focused on making a number of very important improvements and additions to inflow. as our company continues to grow, it has become necessary to expand our team of programmers who work on inflow. with our existing team, we could not always offer the same level of service and attention to detail that we wanted to provide to our customers. we are proud to announce that we are now able to offer inflow at the same price as our previous subscription pricing. we have also increased the number of support staff we have available to help our customers. we feel this is the best pricing we can offer for inflow and we hope that you will enjoy our new service.

the inflow team has been hard at work and it's time once again to release the new and improved inflow to the public! thank you to all our customers who participated in the beta test and helped to make this the best version of inflow yet! this release incorporates the changes which have been addressed over the past few beta's as well as as few new features to make it even easier to use inflow. inflow 2.5.1 is the next step in the constant development of our inventory management system! this new version of inflow offers a lot of new features and functionality, including multi-currency support and improved support for vendor prices. we are excited to share these new features with you and hope you enjoy them. the first new feature we would like to highlight is the ability to handle multiple currencies! before now, you could set up a vendor account with the exchange rate of your local currency and then set up another vendor account with the exchange rate of the vendor's native currency. inflow has now added the ability to treat vendors and customers as completely separate entities and can handle both vendor accounts and customer accounts with any combination of currencies. in addition, inflow allows you to have different vendor accounts for vendors in different markets. here's how this works:
