25. What is a Malware Analyst? Malware analysts are essential members of a team, which are responsible for the detection of malware. They are the ones who prevent the malware before it can cause damage to a company's computer systems. 1.40 Malware Analysis Introduction: Malware analysis is the process of finding evidence that a computer system was attacked by a malicious software program. A malware analyst would search for patterns that would show malware infection activity. Malware analysts, just like other analysts, work within a team. They detect any malicious activity on a system, and look for any piece of evidence that 79a2804d6b
