Additionally, virologists are studying viral-encoded miRNAs to reveal their contribution to viral pathogenesis. This proposal focuses on the role of miRNAs in a strong mammalian cell type, the macrophage. We have made strong progress in the prediction of macrophage-enriched miRNAs, and have validated a role for one of these miRNAs, miR-155. miR-155 is induced upon antiviral interferon signaling, and targets a negative feedback regulator of the type 1 interferon response. Indeed, the negative feedback regulator targeted by miR-155, the ubiquitin
